

U.S. CITIZENS FOR PEACE & JUSTICE, ROME, PRESENTS EYES WIDE OPEN FILM SERIES

2011 WINTER/SPRING PROGRAM in collaboration with Associazione Culturale Arcobaleno

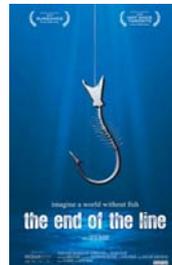

Alternate Thursday Evenings at 8pm
Circolo Arci Arcobaleno, Via Pullino 1 (Metro Garbatella)

Mar 3 – Lilja 4-ever (2002). Our March 8 Women's Day event. This Swedish docu-drama portrays the very harsh life of an Eastern European teenager who naively goes to Sweden when her boyfriend promises a better life there. Abandoned by her mother, tricked into sex slavery, this film shows the hardships of countless young women trapped by human traffickers. Who is helping them?

Mar 24 – End of the Line (2009). The first major documentary to call attention to the devastating impact from overfishing our oceans, this film points to culprits and solutions but political will and activism are needed to properly manage our disappearing marine resources. Scientists predict the end of most seafood by 2048 – will the world react in time to save our fish?

Mar 31 – (Astro) Turf Wars: How Corporate America is Faking a Grassroots Revolution (2010). Our April Fool's Day film. An Australian filmmaker goes undercover in the US to investigate what's really driving the conservative revolt. Don't be fooled by "astroturfing" – the practice of creating "citizens groups" to deliver corporate messages – it's real and scary!

Apr 14 – Comando e Controllo (2010). Aid to the L'Aquila 2009 earthquake victims has been scandalously mis-managed by the current government. People still live in makeshift camps with no promising future in sight. Our guest speaker will be the director – Alberto Puliafito! Don't miss this special night. (Italian w/English subtitles)

Apr 28 – Shock Doctrine (2009). Naomi Klein's book is dramatically brought to life by a filmmaker who tries to further develop her theories on chaos and reform. Archival footage links past events with our complex modern world. Disowned by Klein, but applauded by others, this film nevertheless helps to better understand her critique of "disaster capitalism".

May 12 – Sin Nombre (2009). This award-winning US-Mexican film is a dramatized thriller about the perilous trip via Mexico that Central Americans make to enter the US illegally. Along the way they must deal with brutal gangs and police – sure death or imprisonment if caught – and an uncertain future in the US. (Spanish w/English subtitles)
